If the application material is not properly prepared (even after the possibility of correction), the evaluation committee will reject it without substantive evaluation.

During the application process, an item can only be supported once. Thus, any further applications containing the same item will be rejected by the evaluation committee without substantive evaluation.

An appeal against the decision may be submitted within 15 days of notification (becoming aware of the decision), which must be submitted via the Electronic Study System on the interface provided for this purpose, marked "To the Student Appeals Committee." The activities of the Student Appeals Committee are limited to remedying violations of the law affecting students and decisions contrary to university regulations. As a second-instance body, the Student Appeals Committee cannot exercise discretion and does not decide on requests for discretion. The appeal must include the following information: the student's name, Neptun code, address, email address, name of their faculty, and the ID number of the decision they wish to appeal. The appeal must specify which provision or part of the first-instance decision the student is contesting. Furthermore, a precise request must be submitted as to the extent and for what reason the Committee should amend the contested provision or part of the first-instance decision. The Student Appeals Committee shall communicate its decision to the student via the Neptun Unified Study System. Its decision is available under the Studies menu – Advancement menu item, within the Registry record tab, under Official notes.

If you have any questions regarding the application, please contact the Committee at sportreferens@btkhok.elte.hu.
